Parent Tip!

Your child should not complete a profile for a service provider, and children's screen names should be nondescript so as not to identify that user is a child.

Talk to your child about what to do if they see something that makes them feel scared, uncomfortable, or confused. Show them how to turn off the monitor and emphasize that it's not their fault if they see something upsetting.

INTERNET SAFETY!

POST clear, simple, easy-to-read house rules on or near the monitor

LOOK into safeguarding programs your service provider might offer, including monitoring or filtering capabilities.

TALK to your children about what personal information is and why you should never give it to people online. Web sites for children are not permitted to request personal information without a parent's permission.

If your child uses chat or e-mail, talk to them about never meeting Anyone in person they "met" online.

Talk to your children about not responding to offensive or dangerous e-mail, chat, or other communications.

Keep the computer in the family room or another open area of your home.

Let your child show you what they can do online, and visit their favorite sites.

Have your child use child-friendly search engines when completing homework.

Know whom they are exchanging e-mail with and only let them use chat areas when you can supervise.

Be aware of any other computers your child may be using.

Internet accounts should be in a parent's name with parents having the primary screen name, controlling passwords, and using blocking and/or filtering devices.
